

When you are in the market to pick a vendor from a plethora of similar IT service providers, it is almost a no brainer. You pick the team that is known for its professionalism and ability to deliver. Micro Computer Consulting delivers on much more – try working with a team who will come in after hours or on a weekend to coordinate a move, try working with a team where you never have to leave a message for someone to get back to you, try working with a dynamic bunch of young adults who mix humour, their time and dedication to give you what you desire. When you have this potent mixture, you know you have called Micro Computer Consulting headed by Jherry Lopez.

When High Peak branched out on its own eight years ago, we used MCC's precursor and specifically asked for Jherry to work on our file. He has been a part of our team for so long that we include him on emails about office get-togethers that have nothing to do with business. When we need to speak "computer" we call Jherry, tell him what we need and he translates our needs into computer speak, seamlessly!

As prosaic as it sounds, if Micro Computer Consulting were to use the maxim "For all your computer/IT needs call Jherry of Micro", I would go out on a limb to endorse that!